UK INTRODUCTION

The only essential oils UK rule for buying aroma products online is to purchase directly from the company and avoid using Amazon or eBay

DON'T BUY FAKES

During my research the main issue for many people buying products such as essential oils is the fear of buying fakes. This may become more prevalent in the future since the UK left the EU. The reason for the rise in fake essential oils in the UK is because customers still want their favorite oils, but unhappy with the new predicted hike in prices. The first destination is either Amazon or eBay or some other online eCommerce platform. This is the first mistake and one that many regret fast after realising they have not received the product they purchased.

BEST POLICY

The best policy for buying essential oils online - Due diligence is a must when buying essential oils online or in person. However, it is far too easy to forget that essential oils are used as a wellness and therapeutic product. With this in mind it is important for the customer to trust the vendor and have some kind of guarantee that you are getting what they ordered.

BEWARE!

Sadly, the danger of buying fake and low quality oils is far too real. Even though Amazon and eBay are not intentionally sharing fake products, they are there in plain sight. Many fake aroma products look like the real thing with fake labels and even bottles. However, there is no guarantee what you will find inside. It maybe scented water or something far worse, but what you can be sure of is that it will have no therapeutic benefits at all. In addition, essential oil companies will refuse to take any responsibility for any such products purchased through these platforms. So, save yourself the time, your money and your health and purchase directly from the brand you prefer.

SHOULD YOU ONLY BE BUYING ESSENTIAL OILS ONLINE?

NO, it is perfectly safe to buy products online including essential oils, but there are some products that are so easy to fake that purchasing directly for the company is the best policy. The key is to know where the product comes from and that the company is reputable not just in the UK, but around the world.

The Asian sweat shop fakes

This is a big issue and has been for a while, but many of the webshop that you see via eBay are Asian origin. The prices they are selling essential oils are unsustainable and of course fake. They may quote a reputable company and say their oils are therapeutic grade, but they are unlikely to be either.

If the oils are authentic therapeutic grade essential oils, expect to pay anything from £9 (9€) up to over a £80 (80€) for the rare oils. If you are offered oils at £1-2 a 15 ml bottle, believe me when I say, they are not essential oils.

ESSENTIAL OIL SUPPLIERS UK DEFINE THERAPEUTIC GRADE ESSENTIAL OILS AS:

The story of essential oils goes back to the Egyptians and before. The use of oils were ceremonial as well as therapeutic. Over time the therapeutic uses of essential oils became more popular as more was know about their benefits in daily life.

What is an essential oils?

An essential oil is an oil that has healing and therapeutic properties and is harvested from flowers, plants and trees. Once the raw material has been collected the oil is extracted given the user all the benefits of the plants in oils form.

The is various methods of extracting the oil from the raw material such as cold press or steam. However, this is just the first part of the process, because the purer the oils is the more effective and therapeutic they are. This means that a quality essential oil should not have any fillers or thinner to hinder its effectiveness. The best essential oil should be 100% toxic free. So, make this you top priority when purchasing, because anything less than 100% pure and therapeutic grade could be very harmful and could even irritate the skin.
